1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiffs, a coalition of groups addressing local conservation issues in certain 3 border states, and organizations advocating for the overall reduction of legal and illegal 4 immigration, assert that Department of Homeland Security (“DHS” or “Department”) 5 policies and actions have allowed migrants to enter and remain in the United States. Am.
6 Compl. ¶¶ 27–33, 50–69, ECF No. 44. This influx, Plaintiffs contend, has resulted in 7 widespread environmental harms—either from the movement of immigrants across the 8 Southwest border, or from population growth in the United States that Plaintiffs claim is 9 attributable to the entry and settlement of migrants into the United States—that allegedly 10 would not/might not have occurred had DHS engaged in environmental review pursuant 11 to the National Environmental Policy Act (“NEPA”), 42 U.S.C. §§ 4321–4370m-12. Id.
12 ¶¶ 50–54.

13 The Amended Complaint lists five counts, two of which are wholly unreviewable.
14 Count I challenges the DHS Instruction Manual, an internal DHS guidance document that 15 is not a “final agency action” subject to review under the Administrative Procedure Act 16 (“APA”), 5 U.S.C. §§ 701–706. Count II consists of eight NEPA claims: it challenges 17 seven statutes that provide the statutory basis for DHS’ authority to implement 18 immigration policies, and it challenges the discretionary immigration non-enforcement 19 policy known as Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (“DACA”). Count II fails to 20 identify discrete agency actions that DHS was required to take, and with respect to 21 DACA’s policy of deferred enforcement, is wholly unreviewable under NEPA.

22 A review of Plaintiffs’ voluminous Amended Complaint makes it clear that they 23 simply oppose immigration into this country and seek to disrupt the administration of the 24 Department’s immigration and enforcement policies. Such an overhaul may be 25 appropriately provided through legislative channels, but it cannot be provided, as pled in 26 the Amended Complaint, through NEPA and the APA.

1 II. BACKGROUND

2 Plaintiffs consist of the following groups: three Arizona-based resource 3 management groups addressing local conservation issues, Am. Compl. ¶¶ 27–29; a 4 California-based organization whose “priority goal is to reduce both legal and illegal 5 immigration into California and the United States[,]” id. ¶ 33; an organization of 6 scientists that advocates for population “stabilization,” id. ¶ 41; a New Mexico-based 7 organization that addresses the interests of cattle-ranching communities, id. ¶ 44; a 8 Florida-based organization opposed to population growth caused by immigration, id. ¶ 9 46; and Glen Colton and Ralph Pope, individuals also opposed to population growth 10 caused by immigration, id. ¶¶ 43, 47.¹ Plaintiffs assert that DHS’ policies and actions 11 have allowed foreign nationals to enter and remain in the United States. Id. ¶¶ 50–54.
 12 This, Plaintiffs contend, has resulted in widespread environmental harms—either from 13 the migration of foreign nationals across the Southwest border, or from population 14 growth in the United States that Plaintiffs claim is attributable to the entry and settlement 15 of foreign nationals into the United States—that allegedly could have been prevented had 16 DHS engaged in environmental review pursuant to NEPA. Id. ¶¶ 68–69.

17 For example, Plaintiffs claim that immigration-driven population growth causes 18 urban sprawl and the loss of undeveloped land, id. ¶¶ 82–83; “threatens to accelerate 19 biodiversity loss and the extinction of animal and plant species[,]” id. ¶ 84; and increases 20 greenhouse gas emissions and water use, id. ¶¶ 85–86. Meanwhile, along the Southwest 21 border, Plaintiffs allege that:

25 ¹ Plaintiffs filed their original Complaint on October 17, 2016. See ECF No. 1. Due to 26 the issuance of multiple executive orders, this Court granted a stay of all litigation 27 deadlines until October 6, 2017. See ECF No. 37. Federal Defendants moved to dismiss 28 the Complaint on October 6, 2017, see ECF No. 39, and Plaintiffs filed their Amended Complaint on December 8, 2017, see ECF No. 44.

[t]he massive numbers of people illegally crossing the Southwest border have left a host of environmental impacts in their wake, such as the destruction of native and at-risks [sic] species and habitats by trampling of the native vegetation; garbage dumping on a massive scale; water pollution; and the setting fires, many of which turn out of control, for the purposes of heat, cooking, or to distract Border Patrol agents.

Id. ¶ 90. Plaintiffs assert DHS’ immigration policies constitute “programs which have the effect of encouraging further illegal entry across the Southwest border[.]” id. ¶ 89, though they acknowledge that these “policies are not the sole factor in all of these components of the illegal border-crossing phenomenon,” id. ¶ 90. Plaintiffs do not allege that the Department directly caused Plaintiffs’ alleged injuries, but rather that DHS’ failure to prevent both legal and illegal immigration allowed an influx of migrants that has caused them injury. Id. ¶¶ 7, 50.

Count I of the Amended Complaint alleges that DHS failed “to incorporate NEPA compliance” into its Instruction Manual, an internal document that guides DHS personnel in complying with NEPA. Am. Compl. ¶ 102. Count II alleges that DHS violated NEPA by failing to “initiat[e] any NEPA compliance” for eight purported “programs.” Id. ¶ 107. Plaintiffs list seven statutes originally found within the Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”). Id. ¶ 55. Those statutes as-pled are INA § 203(b), now found at 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b); INA §§ 203(a) and 201(b), now found at 8 U.S.C. §§ 1153(a) and 1151(a); INA § 214, now found at 8 U.S.C. § 1184; INA § 212(d)(5)(a), now found at 8 U.S.C. § 1182; INA § 244, now found at 8 U.S.C. § 1254; INA § 207, now found at 8 U.S.C. § 1157; and INA § 208, now found at 8 USC § 1158. Generally, these statutes govern all matters of immigration and permit DHS, in its discretion, to allow or prohibit entry into the U.S. under specified circumstances.

In addition to the statutes, Count II also alleges that DHS failed to “initiat[e] any NEPA compliance” with regard to DACA. Am. Compl. ¶ 107. The basis for Plaintiffs’ challenge is the June 15, 2012 DHS Memorandum issued by then Secretary of Homeland Security Janet Napolitano titled “Exercising Prosecutorial Discretion with Respect to 1 Individuals Who Came to the United States as Children” (“Napolitano Memo”). Am.

2 Compl. ¶ 55.

3 DHS, along with partner agencies such as the Departments of Justice, Labor, and 4 State, is responsible for enforcing and implementing immigration laws. See, e.g., 8 5 U.S.C. § 1103(a)(1). The Secretary of Homeland Security is charged “with the 6 administration and enforcement” of the INA along with “all other laws relating to the 7 immigration and naturalization of aliens” Id. The scope of DHS’s mission extends 8 beyond immigration to diverse policy areas such as maritime law enforcement (6 U.S.C.
9 § 468(a)(2)), the provision of border security (8 U.S.C. § 1103(a)(5)), and disaster 10 prevention and management (6 U.S.C. § 742). Acting upon her broad authority, the 11 Secretary has issued a range of internal documents in support of the Department’s 12 mission. These include, for instance, the policy memoranda guiding the exercise of 13 lawful discretion of agency personnel included in Plaintiffs’ Exhibit 1, ECF No. 44-2, 14 and Exhibit 2, ECF No. 44-3.

15 The Department’s Instruction Manual, challenged in Count I, is not reviewable 16 under the APA because it is not a “final agency action.” By its very terms, the 17 Instruction Manual is intended to “establish the policy and procedures DHS follows to 18 comply with [NEPA].” Instruction Manual at III-1. As it is merely a statement of 19 internal policy, it fails to meet the definition of a final agency action under the APA.

20 Count II purports to challenge NEPA compliance for eight so-called “programs” 21 related to immigration. See Am. Compl. ¶¶ 55, 103-07. Of the eight “programs” listed in 22 the Amended Complaint, seven are merely citations to statutes that form the basis or 23 establish the framework for DHS’ authority to implement immigration policies, and the 24 eighth challenges DACA. Count II appears to allege that the eight items require 25 programmatic environmental analysis under NEPA, such as through a Programmatic 26 Environmental Impact Statement (“PEIS”), and fall under § 706(1) of the APA.
27 However, such programmatic attacks are precluded under the APA, and thus Plaintiffs 28

1 fail to state a cognizable claim.

2 Plaintiffs' challenge to DACA in Count II fails for another reason as well.
3 NEPA's implementing regulations, similar to the APA's bar on judicial review of matters 4 of prosecutorial discretion, exempt enforcement-related decisions from review.²

5 III. STANDARD OF REVIEW

6 A. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1)

7 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(1) provides for dismissal of an action for 8 "lack of subject-matter jurisdiction[.]" A federal court is presumed to lack jurisdiction in 9 a particular case unless the contrary affirmatively appears. Gen. Atomic Co. v. United 10 Nuclear Corp., 655 F.2d 968, 968–69 (9th Cir. 1981). Faced with a Rule 12(b)(1) 11 motion, a plaintiff bears the burden of proving the existence of the court's subject matter 12 jurisdiction. Thompson v. McCombe, 99 F.3d 352, 353 (9th Cir. 1996). A challenge to 13 subject matter jurisdiction may be facial or factual. White v. Lee, 227 F.3d 1214, 1242
14 (9th Cir. 2000). With regard to a facial attack, the court may dismiss for lack of subject 15 matter jurisdiction if, accepting the plaintiff's allegations as true and drawing all 16 reasonable inferences in the plaintiff's favor, the court determines that the allegations are 17 insufficient to establish its jurisdiction. Pride v. Correa, 719 F.3d 1130, 1133 (9th Cir.
18 2013).

19 By contrast, when a motion to dismiss is "a factual attack on subject matter 20 jurisdiction . . . [n]o presumptive truthfulness attaches to plaintiff's allegations, and the 21 existence of disputed material facts will not preclude the trial court from evaluating for 22 itself the merits of jurisdictional claims. Moreover, the plaintiff will have the burden of 23 proof that jurisdiction does in fact exist." Thornhill Publ'g Co. v. Gen. Tel. & Elecs.

25
26 ² Federal Defendants do not, at this time, move to dismiss for lack of standing. However, 27 Federal Defendants preserve the right to raise such an affirmative defense at a later time.
28 Hollingsworth v. Perry, 570 U.S. 693 (2013) ("Article III demands that an 'actual controversy' persist throughout all stages of litigation.).

1 Corp., 594 F.2d 730, 733 (9th Cir. 1979) (quoting Mortensen v. First Fed. Sav. & Loan 2 Ass’n, 549 F.2d 884, 891 (3d Cir. 1977)). The court may review these additional facts 3 without converting the motion to a motion for summary judgment. Savage v. Glendale 4 Union High Sch., Dist. No. 205, 343 F.3d 1036, 1039 n.2 (9th Cir. 2003). When 5 considering a factual attack, “the district court is not restricted to the face of the 6 pleadings, but may review any evidence, such as affidavits and testimony, to resolve 7 factual disputes concerning the existence of jurisdiction.” McCarthy v. United States, 8 850 F.2d 558, 560 (9th Cir. 1988).

9 B. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6)

10 A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted 11 under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) may be based on either a “lack of a 12 cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal 13 theory.” Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990) (citing 14 Robertson v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 749 F.2d 530, 534 (9th Cir. 1984)). In addition, 15 a complaint that fails to provide the grounds for the requested relief beyond labels and 16 conclusions will not survive a motion challenging the sufficiency of a complaint’s 17 statement of the claim for relief under Rule 12(b)(6). Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 18 U.S. 544, 555 (2007); see also Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th 19 Cir. 2001) (“Nor is the court required to accept as true allegations that are merely 20 conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences.” (citation 21 omitted)).

22 Where a plaintiff fails to assert a cognizable legal theory in support of a claim, the 23 claim must be dismissed. Moreover, while a plaintiff’s material factual allegations are 24 assumed to be true, district courts may not assume the truth of legal conclusions “merely 25 because they are cast in the form of factual allegations.” W. Mining Council v. Watt, 643 26 F.2d 618, 624 (9th Cir. 1981) (citations omitted). A court may consider material properly 27 submitted as part of the complaint without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion 28

1 for summary judgment. Lee v. City of L.A., 250 F.3d 668, 688 (9th Cir. 2001).

2 C. Judicial Review under the APA

3 Where a statute, such as NEPA, does not provide a cause of action, the APA 4 provides for judicial review of challenges to a federal agency's compliance with these 5 statutes. See Native Ecosystems Council v. U.S. Forest Serv., 428 F.3d 1233, 1238 (9th 6 Cir. 2005). Section 702 of the APA waives federal sovereign immunity to the extent that 7 "[a] person suffering legal wrong because of agency action, or adversely affected or 8 aggrieved by agency action within the meaning of a relevant statute, is entitled to judicial 9 review thereof." 5 U.S.C. § 702. The APA defines "agency action" to "include[] the 10 whole or a part of an agency rule, order, license, sanction, relief, or the equivalent or 11 denial thereof, or failure to act[.]" 5 U.S.C. § 551(13). For an agency action to be a 12 "final agency action" reviewable under § 706(2), the action must both "mark the 13 consummation of the agency's decisionmaking process," and "be one by which rights or 14 obligations have been determined, or from which legal consequences will flow[.]" 15 Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. 154, 177–78 (1997) (internal quotation marks and citations 16 omitted).

17 To state a cognizable claim under § 706(2) of the APA, a plaintiff must identify a 18 final agency action that is "arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not 19 in accordance with law." Native Ecosystems Council v. Dombeck, 304 F.3d 886, 891 (9th 20 Cir. 2002) (quoting 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)). Jurisdiction under the APA is limited to 21 review of "[a]gency action made reviewable by statute and final agency action for which 22 there is no adequate remedy in a court" 5 U.S.C. § 704; see also Lujan v. Nat'l 23 Wildlife Fed'n, 497 U.S. 871, 882 (1990). When agency action is "committed to agency 24 discretion by law[.]" judicial review is unavailable. 5 U.S.C. § 701(a)(2). Section 25 701(a)(1) of the APA applies "when Congress has expressed an intent to preclude judicial 26 review" and § 701(a)(2) applies when "the statute is drawn so that a court would have no 27 meaningful standard against which to judge the agency's exercise of discretion" because 28 the statute “‘committed’ the decisionmaking to the agency’s judgment absolutely.” See Heckler v. Chaney, 470 U.S. 821, 830 (1985) (citing 5 U.S.C. § 701(a)(2)).

D. Judicial Review under NEPA

In enacting NEPA, Congress was concerned with the potential impacts of major federal actions significantly affecting the physical environment. See Hale v. Norton, 476 F.3d 694, 700 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing 42 U.S.C. § 4332(C)). NEPA does not apply to every action involving a federal agency, however, but only where there is a proposal for “major Federal action.” Sierra Club v. Penfold, 857 F.2d 1307, 1313 (9th Cir. 1988). NEPA imposes procedural rather than substantive requirements. Robertson v. Methow Valley Citizens Council, 490 U.S. 332, 350 (1989); Native Ecosystems Council v. Weldon, 697 F.3d 1043, 1051 (9th Cir. 2012). An agency’s compliance with NEPA is bounded by a “rule of reason” to “ensure[] that agencies determine whether and to what extent to prepare [analysis] based on the usefulness of any new potential information to the decisionmaking process.” Dep’t of Transp. v. Pub. Citizen, 541 U.S. 752, 767 (2004).

IV. ARGUMENT

A. Count I Fails to Allege a Final Agency Action

1. The Instruction Manual is not a final agency action

As non-binding internal agency guidance that does not require any third party to do or refrain from doing anything, the DHS Instruction Manual does not constitute a final agency action subject to judicial review under the APA. Plaintiffs’ challenge to the Directive therefore must be dismissed.

NEPA claims may be reviewed only pursuant to the APA, and, as a waiver of sovereign immunity for claims against the United States, the APA limits what federal agency activities may be challenged in federal court. Cent. Delta Water Agency v. U.S. Fish & Wildlife Serv., 653 F. Supp. 2d 1066, 1089 (E.D. Cal. 2009) (“[NEPA claims] must fall within the APA’s limited waiver of sovereign immunity.”). The APA limits judicial review to “final agency action.” 5 U.S.C. § 704. Thus, Plaintiffs bear the burden

1 of establishing subject matter jurisdiction, which includes “identifying specific federal 2 conduct and explaining how it is ‘final agency action’ within the meaning of [the APA].” 3 Wyoming v. U.S. Dep’t of Interior, 360 F. Supp. 2d 1214, 1227 (D. Wyo. 2005), aff’d,
 4 442 F.3d 1262 (10th Cir. 2006).

5 The DHS Instruction Manual neither marks the consummation of the agency’s 6 decision-making process, nor constitutes an action by which rights or obligations have 7 been determined or from which legal consequences will flow. Bennett, 520 U.S. at 177– 8 78. The Instruction Manual, along with DHS Directive 023-01, “establish[es] the policy 9 and procedures DHS follows to comply” with NEPA and Council on Environmental 10 Quality (“CEQ”) regulations. Instruction Manual at III-1. It is the agency’s internal 11 guidance for complying with NEPA. The Instruction Manual and Directive “adopt and 12 supplement the CEQ regulations” to “help ensure the integration of environmental 13 stewardship into DHS decision making.” DHS Directive 023-01 at 1 (ECF No. 44-2). In 14 sum, the Instruction Manual serves as a guide to ensure NEPA compliance on a project-15 by-project or action-by-action basis.

16 Policy memoranda and guides for agency operations do not constitute reviewable 17 final agency actions. See Schweiker v. Hansen, 450 U.S. 785, 789–90 (1981) (holding 18 that federal agency’s internal instruction manual, a thirteen-volume handbook for internal 19 use by thousands of Social Security Administration employees, “is not a regulation[,] has 20 no legal force, and . . . does not bind the [federal agency]”); Cement Kiln Recycling Coal.
 21 v. EPA, 493 F.3d 207, 227–28 (D.C. Cir. 2007) (concluding that the EPA’s technical 22 guidance document, the Human Health Risk Assessment Protocol for Hazardous Waste 23 Combustion Facilities, was non-binding because it “does not ‘command[,]’ does not 24 ‘require[,]’ does not ‘order[,]’ and does not ‘dictate’”); Kugel v. United States, 947 F.2d 25 1504, 1507 (D.C. Cir. 1991) (intra-office manual, “The Attorney General’s Guidelines on 26 Criminal Investigations of Individuals and Organizations,” “do[es] not . . . create a duty 27 in favor of the general public”).

1 Plaintiffs cannot establish that the Instruction Manual marks the consummation of 2 DHS' decision-making process as it relates to NEPA. Courts have examined several 3 factors to ascertain whether an action marks the consummation of an agency's decision-4 making process. First, the action "must not be of a merely tentative or interlocutory 5 nature." Bennett, 520 U.S. at 178. But, "tentative" is a precise description of the 6 Instruction Manual challenged here as the document is merely a guide to assist DHS 7 personnel. "[G]uidances do not consummate the decision-making process, they are 8 merely steps relied on to reach a decision" and do not qualify as final agency actions.
 9 Friends of Potter Marsh v. Peters, 371 F. Supp. 2d 1115, 1120 (D. Alaska 2005).
 10 Second, an action may mark the consummation of an agency's decision-making process 11 if it constitutes the agency's "last word on the matter[.]" Or. Nat. Desert Ass'n v. U.S.
 12 Forest Serv., 465 F.3d 977, 984 (9th Cir. 2006). In the NEPA context, a common 13 example is where an agency provides the "last word on a project's environmental impact" 14 as a whole. Friedman Bros. Inv. Co. v. Lewis, 676 F.2d 1317, 1319 (9th Cir. 1982). The 15 Instruction Manual does no such thing. Third, the court may inquire whether an agency 16 has "arrived at a definitive position and put the decision into effect." Idaho Watersheds 17 Project v. Hahn, 307 F.3d 815, 828 (9th Cir. 2002). For instance, when an agency 18 implements its decision to allow grazing on federal land by issuing grazing permits to 19 ranchers, the final action requirement is met. Id.; Or. Nat. Desert Ass'n, 465 F.3d at 985.
 20 Here, Federal Defendants have not issued a permit, implemented a project, nor taken any 21 other comparable action reflecting implementation of a definitive position.

22 Plaintiffs' challenge to the Instruction Manual also cannot meet the second prong 23 of Bennett; whether the challenged action is one by which rights or obligations have been 24 determined or from which legal consequences flow. Bennett, 520 U.S. at 178. A 25 challenge to an agency action fails the second prong of the Bennett test if the challenged 26 action "establishes only the procedural framework under which the [agency] intends to 27 operate." Home Builders Ass'n of Greater Chi. v. U.S. Army Corps of Eng'rs, 335 F.3d 28

607, 619 (7th Cir. 2003). The “action” Plaintiffs challenge here represents nothing more than the internal, procedural framework under which DHS intends to implement NEPA. Legal consequences do not flow from the Instruction Manual—it has no force of law. The Ninth Circuit has emphasized that courts “have no authority to bind [an agency] to the guidelines in [a] Manual or [a] Handbook.” W. Radio Servs. Co. v. Espy, 79 F.3d 896, 902 (9th Cir. 1996); see also Mada-Luna v. Fitzpatrick, 813 F.2d 1006, 1014, 1017 (9th Cir. 1987) (upholding internal INS operating instructions as general statements of policy against procedural challenge because the subject policies did “not establish a ‘binding norm’” and were not “‘finally determinative of the issues or rights to which [they are] addressed,’ but [instead left] INS officials ‘free to consider the individual facts in the various cases that arise.’”). Other circuits have reached similar conclusions. See, e.g., Nat’l Mining Ass’n v. McCarthy, 758 F.3d 243, 251 (D.C. Cir. 2014) (recognizing that the APA created “three boxes” for administrative actions: “legislative rules, interpretive rules, and general statements of policy,” and that courts do not review “general statements of policy”).

The Instruction Manual challenged in Count I guides DHS personnel in evaluating agency actions; it does not propose, much less require, any specific actions with on-the-ground impacts and is thus not “final agency action.” United States v. Alameda Gateway Ltd., 213 F.3d 1161, 1167 (9th Cir. 2000); Northcoast Env’tl. Ctr. v. Glickman, 136 F.3d 660, 667 (9th Cir. 1998). Plaintiffs fail to show that the Instruction Manual meets both prongs of Bennett, thus Count I should be dismissed..

2. The Instruction Manual does not qualify as a “rule” under the APA

Plaintiffs may argue that the Instruction Manual qualifies as a rule under 5 U.S.C. § 551(4), and thus requires NEPA analysis pursuant to 40 C.F.R. § 1508.18(a). See Pls.’ Am. Compl. ¶¶ 96, 97. However, the Instruction Manual is merely a document establishing internal guidelines and does not meet the standard found in 5 U.S.C. § 551(4).

1 5 U.S.C. § 551(4) states that “‘rule’ means the whole or a part of an agency 2 statement of general or particular applicability and future effect designed to implement, 3 interpret, or prescribe law or policy[.]” The Ninth Circuit has consistently found that 4 documents that establish guidelines or state internal policy do not have the force and 5 effect of law and do not meet the definition of a “rule.” See, e.g., Lowry v. Barnhart, 329 6 F.3d 1019, 1022 (9th Cir. 2003) (noting that not all agency pronouncements create 7 judicially enforceable rights); Alameda Gateway Ltd., 213 F.3d at 1168 (Army Corps’ 8 regulation “was not intended to have the force of law, but was instead a policy statement 9 to guide the practice of district engineers”); Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Brennan, 571 10 F. Supp. 2d 1105, 1119–20 (N.D. Cal. 2007). To have the force and effect of law, a rule 11 must be substantive and “conform to certain procedural requirements.” Alameda 12 Gateway Ltd., 213 F.3d at 1168 (quoting United States v. Fifty-Three (53) Eclectus 13 Parrots, 685 F.2d 1131, 1136 (9th Cir. 1982)).

14 Documents that are interpretive or “general statements of policy or rules of agency 15 organization, procedure or practice” do not have the force and effect of law. Alameda 16 Gateway Ltd., 213 F.3d at 1168; see Hells Canyon Preservation Council v. U.S. Forest 17 Serv., 593 F.3d 923, 930–31 (9th Cir. 2010). An agency’s management guidelines are 18 not final agency action if they do not “propose any site-specific activity [or] call for 19 specific actions directly impacting the physical environment.” Glickman, 136 F.3d at 667, 20 670. While an agency’s pronouncements may create judicially enforceable duties, such a 21 pronouncement must “‘prescribe substantive rules—not interpretive rules, general 22 statements of policy or rules of agency organization, procedure or practice,’ and must 23 have been ‘promulgated pursuant to a specific statutory grant of authority and in 24 conformance with the procedural requirements imposed by Congress.’” Lowry, 329 F.3d 25 at 1022 (quoting Fifty-Three (53) Eclectus Parrots, 685 F.2d at 1136). Here, the 26 Instruction Manual, by its very terms, was created to “establish the policy and procedures 27 DHS follows[.]” Instruction Manual at III-1. The fact that it was not published in the 28

Code of Federal Regulations provides further evidence that the document was not intended to be binding. See W. Radio Servs. Co., 79 F.3d at 901. The Instruction Manual is, thus, not a rule.

B. Count II is a Non-Justiciable Programmatic Challenge

Plaintiffs' challenges in Count II fail to allege a discrete agency action that DHS was required to take. Count II purports to challenge NEPA compliance for nearly all of DHS' statutory immigration authority, alleging that "DHS has eight programs covering, respectively: 1) employment based immigration; 2) family based immigration; 3) long-term nonimmigrant visas; 4) parole; 5) TPS; 6) refugees; 7) asylum; and DACA." Am. Compl. ¶ 105. Plaintiffs allege that the seven statutory areas of immigration policies and DACA require programmatic environmental analysis, such as through a PEIS, under 40 C.F.R. § 1508.18(b)(3). Am. Compl. ¶¶ 104, 105. However, Count II fails to state a claim under § 706(1) of the APA, which requires allegations of both a discrete agency action and that the agency was required to take such action, and it should be dismissed.

In Lujan and Norton v. Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance, 542 U.S. 55 (2004) ("SUWA"), the Supreme Court made clear that the APA does not authorize suits seeking "wholesale improvement of [an agency] program by court decree," regardless of whether such suits are couched in terms of a challenge to a final agency action or as a suit to compel agency action unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed. Lujan, 497 U.S. at 891; SUWA, 542 U.S. at 64–65. Instead, in order "to protect agencies from undue judicial interference with their lawful discretion, and to avoid judicial entanglement in abstract policy disagreements which courts lack both expertise and information to resolve," the APA insists upon an "'agency action,' either as the action complained of (in §§ 702 and 704) or as the action to be compelled (in § 706(1))." SUWA, 542 U.S. at 66, 62.

In Lujan, the Supreme Court clarified that the APA's final agency action requirement precludes "general judicial review of [an agency's] day-to-day operations."

1 Lujan, 497 U.S. at 899. In Lujan, the plaintiffs claimed that the Bureau of Land 2 Management (“BLM”) violated NEPA when implementing what plaintiffs termed the 3 “land withdrawal review program.” Id. at 875. This prompted the Court to observe that 4 the purported “land withdrawal review program:”

5 is simply the name by which petitioners have occasionally referred to the 6 continuing (and thus constantly changing) operations of the BLM in reviewing 7 withdrawal revocation applications and the classifications of public lands and 8 developing land use plans as required by the [relevant statute]. It is no more 9 an identifiable “agency action”—much less a “final agency action”—than a 10 “weapons procurement program” of the Department of Defense or a “drug interdiction program” of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

11 Id. at 890. Absent discrete, final agency action, the APA does not permit a plaintiff to 12 obtain wholesale review of an entire program. Id. at 891–94; see also Glickman, 136 13 F.3d at 668–70.

14 In SUWA, the Court further clarified the permissible scope of § 706(1) challenges, 15 holding that § 706(1) only authorizes claims asserting that “an agency failed to take a 16 discrete agency action that it is required to take[,]” and further explained that these two 17 limitations “rule out several kinds of challenges.” SUWA, 542 U.S. at 64–65. With 18 respect to the first limitation, the Court held that an APA “failure to act” is “properly 19 understood as a failure to take an agency action—that is, a failure to take one of the 20 agency actions (including their equivalents) earlier defined in § 551(13).” Id. at 62. It 21 explained that this limitation of judicial review “to discrete agency action precludes the 22 kind of broad programmatic attack . . . rejected in [Lujan],” such that the Lujan plaintiffs 23 “would have fared no better if they had characterized” their claim as an alleged failure to 24 act. Id. at 64–65. With respect to the second limitation “to required agency action[,]” the 25 Court explained that it “rules out judicial direction of even discrete agency action that is 26 not demanded by law.” Id. at 65.

27 In this case, Plaintiffs contest seven statutes that DHS administers, covering broad categories such as “family” and “employment.” Am. Compl. ¶ 55. This is precisely the type of broadside policy attack the APA’s limitations discussed in Lujan and SUWA are intended to preclude. Plaintiffs cannot demand that DHS be required to analyze the seven broad areas of statutory authority in a PEIS because the challenged statutes do not, individually or collectively, constitute a discrete program. Instead, the statutes provide the Congressionally-mandated framework under which DHS operates. For example, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(a) states that “[a]liens subject to the [definitions found in 8 U.S.C § 1151] shall be allotted visas . . . in a number not to exceed 23,400” for unmarried children of citizens, “in a number not to exceed 114,200” for spouses and unmarried children of permanent resident aliens, and “in a number not to exceed 23,400” for married children of citizens. 8 U.S.C. § 1153(a)(1)-(3). Plaintiffs merely list the statutes that provide the parameters for DHS’ operation; they fail to identify any discrete, final agency action on the part of the agency, and their claim fails. See Ctr. for Biological Diversity v. Veneman, 394 F.3d 1108, 1111–13 (9th Cir. 2005) (affirming dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction because plaintiffs did not challenge “discrete agency action”); Wild Fish Conservancy v. Jewell, 730 F.3d 791, 801–02 (9th Cir. 2013) (dismissing APA claim challenging the Department of Interior’s “day-to-day operations” because the claim did not challenge “final agency action”).

Further, neither NEPA nor its implementing regulations require DHS to prepare a PEIS for the seven broad areas of statutory authority and DACA. The second prong of SUWA requires that a plaintiff challenge an agency action that the agency is required to take. SUWA, 542 U.S. at 64. § 706(1) “empowers a court only to compel an agency ‘to perform a ministerial or non-discretionary act[.]’” SUWA, 542 U.S. at 64. Yet an agency’s decision to prepare a PEIS rests wholly within its discretion. See Kleppe v. Sierra Club, 427 U.S. 390, 412 (1976) (noting that the decision to conduct a PEIS requires “a high level of technical expertise and is properly left to the informed discretion of the responsible federal agencies”); Nevada v. Dep’t of Energy, 457 F.3d 78, 92 (D.C.

1 Cir. 2006) (“The decision whether to prepare a programmatic EIS is committed to the 2 agency’s discretion.”). CEQ regulations similarly reflect that preparing a PEIS is 3 discretionary. See 40 C.F.R. § 1502.4(b) (“[An EIS] may be prepared . . . for broad 4 Federal actions” (emphasis added)); id. § 1502.4(c)(2) (“When preparing statements 5 on broad actions . . . , agencies may find it useful to evaluate the proposal(s) . . .
 6 [g]enerically, including actions which have relevant similarities, such as common timing, 7 impacts, alternatives, methods of implementation, media, or subject matter” (emphasis 8 added)).

9 Since § 706(1) can only be used to compel “non-discretionary” acts, and the 10 preparation of a PEIS is, by definition, discretionary, DHS’ alleged failure to prepare a 11 PEIS is not reviewable under the APA. See La Cuna De Aztlan Sacred Sites Prot. Circle
 12 Advisory Comm. v. U.S. Dep’t of the Interior, No. 2:11-CV-00395-ODW (OPX), 2012 13 WL 12888325, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 21, 2012) (“because this Court may review under 14 APA only final agency action the agency was required to take and because Defendants 15 were not required to prepare a PEIS, Defendants’ decision not to prepare a PEIS is not 16 reviewable”). As the Supreme Court has repeatedly affirmed, NEPA does not exist to 17 “give citizens a general opportunity to air their policy objections to proposed federal 18 actions.” Metro. Edison Co. v. People Against Nuclear Energy, 460 U.S. 766, 777
 19 (1983). Despite Plaintiffs’ obvious objections to DHS’ statutory mandate to implement 20 and oversee immigration policy, Plaintiffs “cannot seek wholesale improvement of this 21 program by court decree, rather than in the offices of the Department or the halls of 22 Congress, where programmatic improvements are normally made.” Lujan, 497 U.S. at 23 891. Plaintiffs’ challenge in Count II fails both prongs of SUWA and should be 24 dismissed.

25 C. Plaintiffs’ Challenge to DACA is Unreviewable under NEPA

26 Although NEPA applies generally to “major federal actions,” excluded from that 27 definition are decisions “bringing judicial or administrative civil or criminal enforcement actions.” 40 C.F.R. § 1508.18(a). Hence, in a display of uniformity with the APA’s bar on reviewing matters of enforcement and prosecutorial discretion,³ the decision whether to bring judicial and administrative civil and criminal enforcement actions is specifically exempted from NEPA’s requirements. See United States v. Rainbow Family, 695 F. Supp. 314, 324 (E.D. Tex. 1988) (rejecting claim that NEPA required an environmental analysis to enjoin large, unpermitted gatherings in a national forest, because “it [wa]s not a ‘major Federal action’ under NEPA, requiring environmental analysis, to bring a civil or criminal action to enforce Forest Service or other governmental regulations or statutes”). Thus, a challenge to DACA cannot be brought under NEPA because of the express exemption for law enforcement activities. Such activities are simply not the kind of actions that are (or should be) informed by NEPA analysis or are subject to judicial review for compliance with NEPA.

The decision to grant or not grant deferred status under DACA meets the definition of a judicial or administrative civil or criminal enforcement action. Under the INA, individuals are subject to removal from the United States if, among other things, “they were inadmissible at the time of entry, have been convicted of certain crimes, or meet other criteria set by federal law.” Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 396 (2012) (citation omitted). Due to resource constraints, the federal government cannot remove every removable alien, which means that a “principal feature of the removal system is the broad discretion exercised by immigration officials.” Arizona, 567 U.S. at 396 (citation omitted). “One form of discretion the Secretary of Homeland Security exercises is ‘deferred action,’ which entails temporarily postponing the removal of individuals ³ The APA bars judicial review of certain categories of decisions that “courts traditionally have regarded as ‘committed to agency discretion.’” Lincoln v. Vigil, 508 U.S. 182, 192 (1993) (quoting 5 U.S.C. § 701(a)(2)). Among the decisions committed to executive discretion are an “agency decision not to prosecute or enforce, whether through civil or criminal process,” and “an agency’s exercise of enforcement power.” Chaney, 470 U.S. at 831, 833.

1 unlawfully present in the United States.” Arpaio v. Obama, 797 F.3d 11, 16 (D.C. Cir.
 2 2015) (citation omitted), cert. denied, 136 S. Ct. 900 (2016). Deferred action is a practice 3 by which the Secretary exercises her “discretion to abandon” the removal process, and to 4 notify an individual alien of a non-binding decision to forbear from seeking his removal 5 for a set period. Reno v. Am.-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 483 6 (1999); see 8 C.F.R. § 274a.12(c)(14) (describing “deferred action” as “an act of 7 administrative convenience to the government which gives some cases lower priority”).
 8 In 2012, DACA made deferred action available to certain unlawfully present aliens who 9 came to the United States as children. See “Napolitano Memo.” DACA is an “exercise 10 of prosecutorial discretion,” id. at 1, and it reflects the Department’s decision to bring or 11 not bring an enforcement action against a particular individual.

12 Case law supports the position that Plaintiffs’ challenge to DACA is unreviewable 13 under NEPA. There are not a plethora of cases addressing the issue, likely because 14 NEPA, like the APA, is clear in its prohibition on review of law enforcement activities.
 15 However, this Circuit has addressed the question and found a similar challenge 16 unreviewable under NEPA. United States v. Glenn-Colusa Irrigation District, 788 F.
 17 Supp. 1126 (E.D. Cal. 1992), is especially on point. In that case, the government moved 18 for an injunction to enforce certain provisions of the Endangered Species Act (“ESA”).
 19 Id. at 1128. The irrigation district contended that enforcement of the ESA “without 20 completion of an environmental impact statement violates the National Environmental 21 Policy Act[.]” Id. at 1135. The court disagreed, finding that the government’s decision 22 to enforce the statute did not trigger NEPA. Id. As the court observed, a contrary 23 interpretation requiring NEPA analyses for law enforcement-related actions “would lead 24 to a highly impractical result in which any decision of a law enforcement agency—25 whether to go forward with an action or forbear from action—would require a NEPA 26 analysis.” Id. Here, as in Glenn-Colusa, the Department’s decision on how to enforce 27 immigration laws is not reviewable under NEPA. See also Calipatria Land Co. v. Lujan,

793 F. Supp. 241, 245 (S.D. Cal. 1990); Tucson Rod & Gun Club v. McGee, 25 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1029 (D. Ariz. 1998); West v. Holder, 60 F. Supp. 3d 197, 204 (D.D.C. 2015), aff'd sub. nom., West v. Lynch, 845 F.3d 1228 (D.C. Cir. 2017); Mobil Oil Corp. v. F.T.C., 562 F.2d 170, 173 (2d Cir. 1977) (reversing the district court's decision to require NEPA analysis in the enforcement context and holding that "NEPA does not intend that the FTC may be indefinitely delayed in undertaking its statutory duties[.]").⁴

NEPA was not intended to become a means of delaying or obstructing an agency's discretionary authority to enforce the laws entrusted to its care, which is precisely what Plaintiffs' wholesale attack on immigration policies seeks to do here. Plaintiffs' challenge to DACA should be dismissed.

V. CONCLUSION

Counts I and II should be dismissed. Count I fails both prongs of Bennett, challenging a general statement of policy and not a final agency action as required by the APA. Count II is a non-justiciable programmatic challenge that fails to allege a discrete agency action that DHS was required to take. Finally, Plaintiffs' challenge to DACA in Count II further fails because judicial review is precluded under NEPA. For the foregoing reasons, the Court should dismiss Counts I and II.

Respectfully submitted,

DATED: January 22, 2018

JEFFREY H. WOOD
Acting Assistant Attorney General
United States Department of Justice
Environment & Natural Resources Division

⁴ Also of note in Mobil Oil Corp. v. F.T.C., CEQ issued an advisory memorandum on the application of NEPA to the FTC's enforcement actions. The CEQ concluded that NEPA analysis was not required because such a process would impede enforcement of the laws entrusted to the FTC and severely restrict the agency's prosecutorial discretion. 562 F.2d 170.
